

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

May 29, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Higher-ups were likely aware of McCarrick restrictions, says monsignor:

Msgr. Anthony Figueiredo, former Cardinal Theodore McCarrick's former secretary, released excerpted letters in the pursuit of transparency in the church.

"I knew nothing, obviously, of McCarrick," Pope Francis told journalist Valentina Alazraki during an interview that Vatican News published Tuesday. "Nothing, nothing. I said several times that I didn't know, that I had no idea."

El Paso stats support concerns about 'Remain in Mexico' plan: As Maria Benevento reports, "Seven weeks after the U.S. government rolled out its "Remain in Mexico" plan in the El Paso sector of the U.S.-Mexico border, statistics collected by the Hope Border Institute showed a stark reality which seemed to justify advocates' concerns about the program."

Peter Feuerherd starts this week's parish roundup with this question: "Want to change the church? Susan Bigelow Reynolds suggests getting involved in the nitty-gritty of parish life."

Michael Sean Winters explains why South Bend Mayor Pete Buttigieg won't win and shouldn't win the Democratic nomination for president.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy
Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*