

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

**Join the Conversation**

July 19, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

How Mother Angelica's 'miracle of God' became a global media empire: The history of EWTN involves Mother Angelica's saavy business decisions. Part Four of Heidi Schlumpf's series tracks the network founder's rise as a culture warrior in the 1990s.

Michael Sean Winters writes: "It did not hit me until the U.S. House of Representatives voted to condemn President Donald Trump's racist tweets on Tuesday. Trump really is making America great again."

In NCR's latest editorial, we say: The president is a racist and is using age-old racist tropes to open ever deeper divisions in the body politic. And yet. We hear from some Catholic and evangelical quarters that he is "the most pro-life president" ever. We hear from some that the man may be despicable but "some of his policies are obviously working." But this is not politics as usual.

During their recent trip to Italy, NCR executive editor Tom Roberts and his wife took a train from Rome to Milan. In NCR Connections, Roberts unpacks a thought from the train, about "the tension between authority and charism, between exuberant freedom and institutional necessities." Read on for more about NCR's new climate editor, Bill Mitchell.

Your thoughts on the crisis at our southern border: Readers respond to NCR's three editorials calling attention to the humanitarian crisis.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*