

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

July 30, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

The group Conservatives Concerned About the Death Penalty has spoken out against the reinstatement of the federal death penalty. The group makes the case that the death penalty goes against conservative principles like limited government and respect for life.

Contributor Don Clemmer puts forward an unexpected model that could give the church a makeover when it comes to cultural encounter: 'Queer Eye' shows how grace works.

Sr. Mary Petrosky goes looking in the Gospels for Jesus' encounters with older people, and learns that elders aren't excused from speaking out on injustices.

Catholic laypeople are supposed to step up and get involved in matters of church governance. But how? Peter Feuerherd advises: Look for lay involvement that transcends the ideological divide.

GSR has a Q & A with Sr. Mary Nafula, ministering to patients with HIV/AIDS in Kenya. She and her team particularly focus on creating a welcoming environment for youth.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*