

Columns
Spirituality

(Pixabay/congerdesign)

by Judy Principe

Contributor

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

April 4, 2023

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Usually around this time of the year, I begin to ponder what I may want to do for the season of Lent. But this year, I seem to be thinking less about what practices I can do, and more about seeking the dispositions to help me graciously accept what God is doing in my life.

Last October I celebrated 80 years of life with great gratitude to God for the many graces and blessings received throughout my life. But turning 80 seems to have given me a different perspective and has brought me starkly face-to-face with the ongoing losses and diminishment I am experiencing presently, and the inevitable future of continued diminishment and losses. Life seems to be offering me many opportunities to acknowledge my vulnerability, make friends with the inevitability of loss, and allow God to fill the emptiness and inner space these create.

Perhaps it is one of the gifts of the "maturing" years, but I find myself praying for the grace to be open to what life brings and accepting all difficulties in union with Jesus and his cross. My daily prayer is to be faithful and to age with gratitude, dignity and grace. So maybe this Lent, I need to focus on those three virtues, and perhaps they are virtues we want to ask for and acquire at any age or stage of life.

What does this look like for me? Several years ago, at Francis House of Prayer, St. Joseph Sr. Marcy Springer presented a practical format with which to pray during Lent. It is a simple comparison of what one wants to fast from, and what one wants to feast on regarding virtues and good habits. Feasting on gratitude, dignity and grace means fasting from those opposite tendencies which draw me away from practicing and living these qualities.

Feasting on gratitude requires a definite frame of mind which looks at the opportunities for good, growth and acceptance in any situation. There is an obvious need for fasting from worry, anxiety, fear, wanting things to go my way, and negative cultural and worldly influence, and feasting on acceptance, trusting in God's goodness and providence, focusing on what is possible and good, seeing new opportunities to love and serve, and meeting diminishment and losses with unshakable faith in God's steadfast love and presence.

How do I define dignity and how do I feast on it? I think it is a sense of my real identity as a child of God, made in God's image and likeness. I am a uniquely, unrepeatable expression of God in the world. It is this identity that guides my thoughts, words and actions. Inspired by the Holy Spirit, I am free to make Godly choices in all life's circumstances and encounters. For me, it is the strength of the Holy Spirit which enlightens and empowers a life lived from this core identity in obedience to God's will.

Advertisement

As Sisters of St. Joseph associates, we were given a set of Maxims, short admonitions from Jesuit Fr. Jean Pierre Medaille, the founder of the Sisters of St. Joseph. Maxim 36 advises, "Stay rooted in who you are to God — one loved and called." Maxim 54 admonishes, "Witness courageously that no one less than God has any power over you." Fasting from selfishness, impatience, anger, pride, stubbornness, and my false self-image while feasting on the reality of who I really am in union with Jesus, will help me live that dignity which he always modeled in his life.

For me, God's grace has many faces. It is the strength to do good and overcome evil, sinful or negative tendencies; it is God's mercy, benevolence, forgiveness and healing. It is the constant and continuous stream of God's presence, power and providence each moment of every day.

Maxim 84 tells me: "Wait to be led by grace. Follow it when it comes." While following that grace, Maxim 80 advises: "Don't focus on measuring your progress. Trust grace at work in you." And Maxim 58 warns, "We can put obstacles in the path of God's grace. Be aware." Living with grace requires feasting on openness, discernment, willingness and responsiveness to follow God's lead and fasting from my misdirected desires, plans and expectations.

I would like to suggest that you consider designing your own "fasting-feasting" program under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. What is it you want to do, or be? What do you need to feast on to accomplish that desire? What is it you want to let go of, or change? What may you need to fast from? Perhaps a sample of what my fasting-feasting chart might look like will inspire you to design your own as guided by the Spirit.

Judy Principe's fasting-feasting chart

| Fast from | Feast on |
|---------------------|---------------------------|
| Anxiety | Trust |
| Fear | Faith in God's providence |
| My way | Acceptance and surrender |
| Cultural negativity | Hope |
| Selfishness | God-centeredness |
| False identity | True identity |
| Pride | Humility |
| Expectations | Openness |

Of course, each of these needs to be explored and defined into practical living which will be part of my Lenten prayer and practice. Maybe it will work for you as well!