

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

February 27, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily provides insight on recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Joshua McElwee has exclusive interviews with Chicago Cardinal Blase Cupich and Maltese Archbishop Charles Scicluna. If a bishop is removed from office, the Vatican doesn't give a reason why. In separate interviews, Cupich and Scicluna tell McElwee that that needs to change.

Read: Exclusive: Cupich, Scicluna say Vatican should give reasons when a bishop is sacked

"Checking out how conservative U.S. Catholics reacted to the Vatican sex abuse summit would be funny if it were not so pitiful," writes Michael Sean Winters. He reviews some commentaries and gives some context to each. The reactions led him to this question: What would the summit have looked like if it had been organized by U.S. conservative churchmen and laity?

Read: Reaction of conservative Catholics to abuse summit reveals a lot

Joan Chittister laments the autocrats all around us, and how they're messing up everything (my wording, not hers). As she explains it: "The problem lies in the lack of Benedict's third step of humility. It is the third step of humility that binds us to the rest of the human race."

Read: Listen to those entrusted with our growth

Over 500 churches hosted Night to Shine, a prom-night event for people 14 and older with special needs: Dan Morris-Young collects this and more parish headlines in this week's Field Hospital news roundup.

Read: Parish roundup: Night to Shine; Christian-Muslim chat; diocese offers app

In case you missed it: Maria Benevento reports on a Chicago shelter for young male asylum-seekers. When minors come to the country unaccompanied, at age 18 they must either move in with a sponsor or report to an adult detention center. Ahmad shares his harrowing journey with Benevento.

Read: When unaccompanied minors turn 18, living options shift

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.

Advertisement