

Opinion

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

October 17, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Sister-run center trains people in trades, entrepreneurship to improve lives. Students at the Dolores Sopeña Center in Puente Alto, Chile, have increasingly included "the educated poor, having degrees but no work," says Sr. Gabriela Herrera. Run by sisters of the Dolores Sopeña Catechist Institute, the center helps all who come to pursue their entrepreneurial dreams.

At a "Women in the Church" consultation in Pune, India, 95 Catholic sisters from more than 30 congregations pushed back against discrimination and demanded that the Indian church implement its own gender policy, adopted nine years ago. Participants at the Oct. 4-6 gathering approved a statement that calls for women's 'due place' in church leadership.

They weren't the only sisters who came together to discuss gender equality recently. In case you missed it: In Washington, D.C., Benedictines Chittister and Forcades delve into women's role in church.

NCR's Field Hospital series profiles the welcoming, serving St. Francis Xavier Church in Manhattan, a parish where people 'want to be.' "People will go out of their way to come here for the liturgy, for the community, for preaching that's not afraid to engage the issues at hand," says the new pastor.

Dominican Sr. Binh Thanh Nguyen recalls her journey following St. Dominic, a destiny of mobility that has taken her from refugee to itinerant minister.

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.